SELECT SHORTHORN HERD FOR SHOWING

Twenty Head of Milking Short-horns to be Shown at the International.

Twenty-two head of Milking Short-horns have been selected for the Rock county show herd for the Chicago International Livestock exposition Dec. 1 to 8. A number of the animals selected will be consigned to the national sale held in connection with the exposition.

Three ago bulls were selected by the committee composed of Harvey Little, Ralph Marquart, Robert Lamb and J. C. Nisbet. One of the best new prospects is the herd sire at the Sanberg Larson herd near Edgerton, a son of Walgrove Snow-scan, now owned by Alf Addie, Milton Junction. The other two are Pinestone Chief from the J. W. Lamb and Son herd and Kinsella Duke 4th, owned by Payne and Brown. Other consignors to the county international herd are the Walter Little estate, Boynton Brothers, Irving Rime, Ryo Brothers, Marquart Brothers, the Peter Traynor estate and James Hadden and Son. This will be the last year that Telluride's Fame, junior champion at the last international, will show with Rock county; negotiations being made for the sale of this undefeated champion soon after the Chicago show.

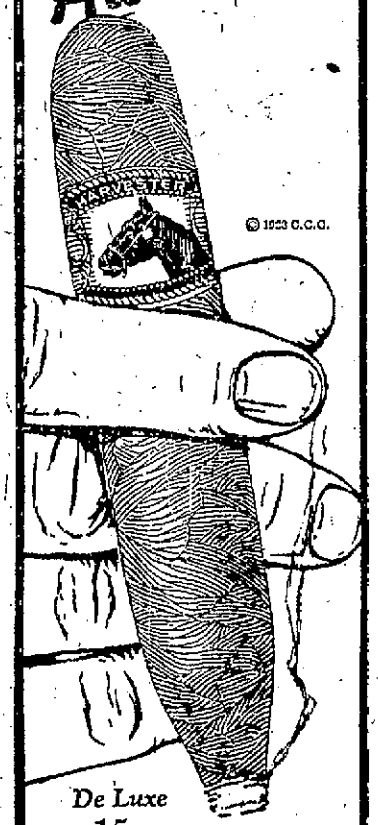

One of the best prospects is the yearling herd sired by Ryo Brothers, Avalon. This group is headed by Abraham Hatchedler, a winning bull with Rock county; negotiations being made for the sale of this undefeated champion soon after the Chicago show.

The committee making the selections believe that they have considerably stronger herd than was sent by Rock county to the 1922 international.

Tobacco is slowly establishing itself as an English crop. Experiments are being carried out by Hampshire in the hopeful expectation of producing a brand that will rank with the best yielded by the tobacco fields of Kentucky and Virginia.

STATE CUTS TAX ON COUNTY $26,000

Only $174,000 Is Asked for 1924, Compared to $200,000 This Year.

A reduction of $26,856.02 in the apportionment of state taxes for Rock county is seen with the receipt of the 1924 statement from the state treasurer by County Clerk Howard W. Lee. The total for 1924 including state taxes, special charges for charitable and penal purposes and others is $174,184.47 as compared with $200,880.49 for the present year.

The largest part of the reduction is in the taxes for educational purposes which is $27,804. The total for 1924 including certificates of indebtedness is $150,133 as compared with $178,012.22 for the present year. The special charges together with an assessment of $282.20 for inspection of the county books makes the total of these items larger by $1,642. than in 1923. The figures for 1923: $22,077 and $449.27 for a reassessment proceedings and 1924: $23,220.73 with inspection of the books costing $382.

In the school taxes, that for the coming year for the state university will cost only $20,000 while the assessment this year was $50,000. This accounts for the largest part of the decrease for the coming year.

Rock county will pay about the same amounts for taxes to support various state institutions. ### U. S. DRY AGENT SUED FOR DIVORCE

John Sampica, Former Local Tailor, Charged With Desertion.

Suit for divorce against John A. Sampica, former Janesville tailor, now said to be living at Buffalo, N. Y., and in the employ of the United States government as a prohibition agent, has been started in the Rock county circuit court by his wife, Maude B. Sampica.

The wife charges that Sampica deserted her. She asks an absolute divorce and the custody of their two children, Jack, eight, and June, 15 months. They were married Aug. 27, 1913.

Bernice E. Bancroft, Evansville, is another spouse who seeks relief from marital troubles. Through her attorneys, Nolan, Dougherty & Grubb, Janesville, she has filed suit for divorce from Hubert M. Bancroft, Evansville printer, on the grounds of cruel and inhuman treatment.

It is set forth in the complaint that they were married at Prospect, Ill., July 14, 1914, and three sons were born, the eldest now eight years old. In 1918 it is alleged Bancroft failed to support his wife and family, which led to his "father becoming so vexed that he caused him to be drafted into military service." It is also charged that he associated with women of low repute, and that when they lived at Durand, Ill., he was tried by the Knights of Pythias for lewd conduct and expelled.

551 VOCATIONAL STUDENTS IN CITY

Janesville Below Majority of Wisconsin Cities in Special Classes.

Enrollment in the Janesville vocational school, now totals 551, according to J. M. Dorrans, director. Of these, 251 are in day classes and 301 in night classes, it was stated.

This gives the city a place above Wisconsin Rapids at which place the enrollment is 454. Superior is the next city listed, with 447.

The number receiving instruction in some Wisconsin cities is much greater, according to a summary of activities announced by George P. Hambrecht, director of vocational education for the state. Aside from the size of the cities of approximately the same size as Janesville, Mr. Dorrans accounts for the large enrollments in some cities by stating that the ratio of students in vocational schools is much larger in cities having a greater foreign element, such as some of the northern Wisconsin places, especially those employing many laborers in paper mills.

According to the report, more than 62,000 children and adults received instruction during the past year through vocational schools supervised by the state board of vocational education. Classes were conducted in 46 cities. The larger part of the students were in night classes, it was stated by Director Hambrecht.

Forty percent of the total vocational enrollment during the year was in Milwaukee, the students in that city numbering 20,163.

Enrollments in other cities in the state follow: Beloit, 955; Fond du Lac, 2,288; Racine, 2,906; Oshkosh, 1,640; Superior, 447; Appleton, 1,239; Chippewa Falls, 627; Eau Claire, 810; Green Bay, 1,748; La Crosse, 2,437; Manitowish, 1,084; Marinette, 826; Sheboygan, 1,334; Wausau, 374; and Wisconsin Rapids, 464.

MATHESON WILL NOT BE CANDIDATE FOR THE ASSEMBLY

lations in our social structure and concerning financial affairs. These could not and should not have been discussed without very serious and careful investigation, unswerving by political consideration or pressure imposed by interested persons. These and some others have been genuine questions to which I have been interested both as to myself and for my constituents in Rock county. I have no hesitation in saying that I was in a manner isolated from the majority in control of the assembly during the last session, but that could serve only to add to necessary vigilance and activity against pernicious legislation.

A Fine Constituency.
"There have been many bright spots in the two terms of service. I have found many splendid friends and excellent and honest gentlemen in the legislature. It has been a matter of pride that I have been able to do what was possible for the men and women of Rock county who have been the support of me. No finer body of men and women, I believe, can be found in Wisconsin than these men and women citizens of the first district. I am under lasting obligations to them for their expressions of confidence and it has been my desire that I should be able to honestly hold that esteem. It has been a great and educating experience to work as an assemblyman from this district.

"I make this announcement that I shall not again be a candidate in the legislature. I have been a candidate in justice to the men and women who may desire to enter the field, and that there will be no question in anyone's mind as to my purpose. My decision is definite and, after careful consideration, must be final."

AT THE THEATRES

Every kid in town will undoubtedly see Jackie Coogan in "Circus Days," as every child has probably read the book from which it was taken. "Toby Tyler" or "Ten Weeks With the Circus" is a child's picture through and through, with all the pranks and stunts that involve the age of childhood. But adults will enjoy the picture, not because it abounds in high moments and amusing episodes, but just because it is a review of the adventures that befell a little boy while traveling with a circus, none of which is colored enough to make the picture a thriller.

After the past few weeks of weird scenes, with depots and mad races of automobiles with railroad trains, and a few murders sprinkled here and there, "Circus Days" is a restful recreation. Jackie Coogan in anything is wonderful and appealing. This coupled with wise selection of a vehicle to exploit his art, makes him irresistible. Has anyone ever seen Jackie in regular boy's clothes? Since his debut with Charlie Chaplin in "The Kid," he has been appearing in long, very long pants, which is a tricky way of exaggerating his appearance. Even in the finale of this week's picture, after success has come to the little bareback rider, he returns to his untidy fare in a quaint old man's suit, watching the little hero trying to dismount from a fine old horse and the middle ring at the same time.

THE UNIVERSAL CAR

New Roadster

Business men—with whom the runabout has always been very popular—are well pleased with the changes embodied in this model. Always rugged, the car has been made decidedly trimmer and more comfortable. This result is obtained by raising the radiator and enlarging the cowl; making a decided improvement in looks and providing more leg room. A well designed top and slanting windshield do their share toward adding a finished, clean-cut appearance. Make it a point to see the other new models also on display in the nearest Ford dealer's show room.

RAILROADING IS TAME NOW, HE SAYS

Bennett, Old-Timer on N. W., Says Great Skill and Daring Needed in Old Days.

Railroading is tame today compared with the old days, according to William Bennett, formerly of Janesville, superintendent of telegraphy on the C. & N. W. railroad. Mr. Bennett makes the statement in the October issue of the Northwestern Railway Magazine that "American railroading was a combination of great skill and reckless daring."

Formerly all braking was done by hand and jerky stops were unknown, but now easy stops are rare, even with the vestibules, strong compression and tension springs and almost useless couplers of the present day," continues Mr. Bennett.

"Furthermore, a man with due exercise of his senses would never be injured nowadays when coupling cars, due to the improved pin action. Formerly it was necessary for a man to place the pin in the link by hand and to take a chance of losing his hand in the bargain. It is not necessary for a man to be between the cars now with the improved system of pulling the pin."

At the time Mr. Bennett served as operator at Wrightstown the Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad and the Northwestern were not competitors. There were interlocking tracks at every crossing. All those junctions were joint stations. Trains of both roads were scheduled to connect with each other at such places.

The interlocking system was a safety device. It was a mechanical device which checked every car and baggage checks were in general use between them. Each company loaded freight merchandise cars for distribution on the roads of the other.

SKULL DISCOVERY IS HELD EPOCHAL

Uncovering of Remains of Ancient Man Revises Former Theories.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS]
Santa Barbara, Cal.—As a result of further excavations on the spot where the skulls of pre-historic man were found by Smithsonian Institution investigators last Thursday, scientists here today were more firmly convinced that one of the most important scientific discoveries of recent years had been made by Dr. J. E. Harrison in uncovering remains of primitive man.

Minute inspection of the skulls, and of the formation in which they were imbedded, continues to point to the great remoteness of the era in which the Santa Barbara man lived. Dr. Harrison declared, reiterating his original assertion that the discovery would bring about a complete revision of anthropological theories concerning the North American continent. The skulls with the beaming brows and receding foreheads, he declared, definitely established in his opinion the fact that North America was discovered thousands of years before Columbus' historic arrival, by primitive apes, like man, just in the transitional period from anthropoid to man, who crossed from Asia by way of Behring strait, found an uninhabited land and made a foundation of aboriginal civilization.

Imbedded in Hard Pan
The earth, over the deposits of which the primitive skulls were imbedded, had apparently been used as a burial ground by Indians known to have existed for several centuries before the appearance of the first white man in the middle of the sixteenth century.

The spot where the skulls lay imbedded in the hard pan is similar to the place where the primitive remains of the first inhabitants of Scotland were found on what is known as the "fifty-foot beach" which although now high and dry, was the ocean bed in the early days of the Neolithic age, approximately 25,000 years ago.

Milwaukee Will Hear McCormack

John McCormack, world's famous Irish tenor, is to be heard in a concert in the Milwaukee Auditorium next Monday under the auspices of the Maydon-Andrews concert bureau. The following program is being offered to "who discovered McCormack."

John McCormack was born in the town of Athlone, Ireland, and at the age of 13 was sent to Summer Hill college, Sligo, where he was graduated at the age of 18 with the highest honors, taking all the prizes in his class in Latin, Greek, mathematics and English composition. He was then sent to Dublin to take an examination for a place in the Royal College of Science.

One day when McCormack sat at the piano accompanying himself to one of his favorite songs, a doctor from his home town entered the room. When the song was finished the doctor said to McCormack: "I have heard you sing and I am convinced that you are a singer. I have heard you sing and I am convinced that you are a singer. I have heard you sing and I am convinced that you are a singer."

McCormack, who was then a student at the Royal College of Science, was then sent to Dublin to take an examination for a place in the Royal College of Science. He was then sent to Dublin to take an examination for a place in the Royal College of Science.

NEED INDUSTRIES TO AID TAX, SAYS NASH; HITS BLAINE

facturing out of the state and when it is gone there will be heavier taxes for the remainder to pay. I am not going off half cocked, but if I'm driven out of Wisconsin, I'll move. I have some brick and mortar here and some in Milwaukee which I've forced, I might abandon. I have a home in Kenosha and that could go, too. If we are driven out of Wisconsin, it will not be our fault.

Organization Urged.

"We are going to have an election in another year and there is no time to lose in forming an organization to elect men who will vote this state an administration not for a few, but for the masses. There is too much of a tendency today to allow ourselves to be ruled by politicians while we should be guided by men of business ability, vision and honesty."

Mr. Nash urged his hearers to start organizing now to vote that the right men are nominated and elected to offices of trust in the state to look after the interests of industry and draw enough people to elect the state so taxes for all will be reduced.

WILL HAVE MORE TO SAY, BLAINE DECLARES

Madison—Governor Blaine, in a statement today, declared he expected "dissemination" of some "corruptions" regarding taxes in Wisconsin in answer to statements reported to have been made by Charles W. Nash, president of the Nash Motors company in Kenosha. The governor said he would have "additional information to give the people on tax-dodging corporations."

"We have to understand that I must expect the dissemination of some corporations, for it will be remembered that the Nash Motor company had defaulted in its income taxes nearly a quarter of a million dollars."

Get License—A marriage license has been issued to Bernard Setzer and Clara R. Russ, Magnolia, by County Clerk H. W. Lee.

WINTRY BLASTS HALT ROAD WORK

Moore Hopes to Finish Fifth Mile on Route 20 After Cold Spell.

Construction work on completion of the five miles of concrete from Janesville west on Highway 20 was halted, temporarily Tuesday, by the wintry and sudden drop in temperature. County Commissioner Charles E. Moore expects that his crew of 30 men will be able to resume work in "laying" concrete within a couple of days as he considers the wintry weather only temporary.

There are now four miles completed of the concrete road and the additional mile which will mark the conclusion of the 23 building operations will be laid in two weeks if good weather prevails. Mr. Moore said Tuesday.

The road gang was at work Tuesday doing some odd jobs which require attention.

Another month of good weather is needed that other road work in the county be satisfactorily completed. Webb and Elson and other Garry are surfacing four miles on the county line north of Broadhead and west of the Rock County line.

PRESS WRECKED AS TRAIN BUTTS INTO NEWSPAPER OFFICE

Alma, Wis.—The Buffalo County Journal is out of the running for a few days, at least.

The passenger train which Monday jumped the track and crashed through the business section of the town, wrecking four buildings and scattering the inhabitants into conflagration, pushed the Journal press up the foundations and smashed up the offices of the paper generally.

The only person injured sufficiently to require medical attention was the engineer, George R. Smith, LaCrosse, who stuck to the engine and rode with it through the city.

All the papers in the city, however, hit an open switch, went off the track and tore through two frame warehouses, through a hardware store, into the offices of The Journal and then on into a garage.

Shrieks of frightened passengers added to the noise of splintering timbers and breaking glass. No car turned over and when the engine stopped in the garage, one could see standing in the center of the newspaper office.

What the Bowling Tournament Means to Janesville.

Janesville is to have the state bowling tournament beginning in the last week of January and extending through the month of February as fast as teams of bowlers are able to play off the matches. In point of winter sports this is the largest event which Janesville has, perhaps ever known. To the city will come some 6,000 or more people and it means, in terms of money, large sums left here by the visitors. The publicity for the city is an item of more than passing importance.

Bowling has become recognized as one of the cleanest and most attractive sports of America. It has taken a high place and each year finds more people, both men and women, enjoying it. In securing the state tournament Janesville, assumed a few obligations. One of them was that we should secure 600 teams of bowlers or their equivalent in terms of entrance fees. It means the raising of far less than ten per cent of the amount which by the least calculation will be expended here by the visitors. Janesville, of course will meet the demand and set the standard for future tournaments we believe. But it will take the united, unqualified, full support of all interests to do it.

Everybody will be able to assist in a measure in the success of the tournament.

If it wasn't for divorce we would have no books of fiction outside the statistical reports.

The One-Crop Farmer.

The one-crop farmer has not moved away from Wisconsin entirely. He is here in the potato grower who is now looking about, as is the wheat farmer, for another crop or so to raise as a money producer. Potatoes have seen so many ups and downs in the last few years that there is about as much discouragement over potatoes as there is from wheat. There has been no request yet from the potato men for a special session of congress nor a valorization of prices by the government. They have, however, in some sections organized a cooperative marketing association and arranged for storage of the crop so that it will be marketed when potatoes are steady and higher. The Superior Telegram suggests that an additional money crop would be far raised for the seed and notes that the demand for flax seed is far greater than the supply. One thing we may be assured concerning, and that is that right now the farmers of the nation are giving more careful business attention to the business side of farming than ever.

We may be short of change now and then, but never short of change of venue.

"A Jackass Statute."

The staunchest newspaper supporter of Senator Moses, of New Hampshire, the Manchester Union, says that when the senator says the Volstead law is a "jackass statute" he speaks for himself and "not for the people of his state, or for the republican party of the state." Senator Moses said that the reason for the Volstead act being of the jackass quality was that it declared buttermilk to be an alcoholic beverage. However, it may be possible for any of the men feeling that they are deprived of buttermilk by the Volstead act, to amend the law so that they may have their pet drink. It is as funny as an elephant in a pink sunbonnet, to note the worry of some customer of a synthetic gin bootlegger walling over the injustice of the Volstead law in depriving him of alcoholic buttermilk. Also in New Hampshire it is well for Senator Moses to mind what he does. He may get so wet that he will float out of office. New Hampshire was a year ahead of the 18th amendment in adopting prohibition. It passed a drastic enforcement law and has carried it out well and efficiently. The people of the state of Moses are for both the 18th amendment and the Volstead law. He may talk big outside but within his own state he is as silent on the question as was Governor Blaine when he ran for office in 1922.

Usually the play with a moral is the most immoral.

Time and again the Gazette has exposed the Spanish prisoner swindle only to have it bob up again serenely. A few days ago the headquarters of the swindlers in Barcelona, Spain, were raided and tens of thousands of names of Americans found. Among them a number of Rock county people will be listed. The swindle has paid the promoters several million dollars in the past 50 years but as Barnum said, a sucker is born every minute, so the game never grew cold. The arrest of the swindlers may end the attempts to get the gullible, for some time at least.

Even a freight train can beat an automobile.

It is too bad, we must admit. The Milwaukee Journal does not think Frank Kellogg will make a good ambassador to Britain. It demands a really great man. Something human, we suppose, of the calibre of Joseph Tumulty?

Under an elm tree standing in Cambridge, Massachusetts, George Washington took command of the army of the United Colonies, and for eight years thereafter was the head of that small continental army which secured by force of arms, the independence of those 13 political divisions in

TAKE AN OPTIMISTIC VIEW

By FREDERICK J. HASKIN.

"Washington.—There is an old Chinese proverb to the effect that there are a great many troubles in the world but most of them never happen. Among the many public men in national life today, perhaps most of whom are viewing with alarm either the plight of the wheat farmer or the German reparations or some other tangled situation, there is one who insists upon being optimistic. He is H. R. Crissinger, governor of the Federal reserve board, the body which stands at the head of the American monetary system.

Governor Crissinger's optimism found expression at a recent business conference where most of the conferees took up the time of the participants with doleful recitals of all the pessimistic things which were going on in the world. There were numerous declarations that unless the price of wheat improved the American farmer would turn beetfield and upset the government. It was declared that the European situation was most praying for and that a new world war is just around the corner. Hard times were predicted here and abroad.

When Governor Crissinger's turn came he surprised the conferees by finding the outlook fairly rosy. He admitted that there are some bad spots but insisted that, in general, the world is in pretty good shape and getting better. For the benefit of his gloomy associates he reviewed some of the developments and situations in the world today which constitute cause for believing that the end times are not near. Some of these are well worth repeating and worth thinking about because they show that while the outlook may frequently be very gloomy, some of the most portentous events actually do not take place. Like the troubles in the Chinese province, most of them never happen.

Mr. Crissinger pointed out that the waste of lives and men in the great war is over. The fever of bolshevism which swept Russia after the war has abated, and the efforts of its sponsors to extend their doctrine of world revolution and violence westward to Europe and America, and eastward to Asia, have been thwarted. The great Russian famine which is estimated to have killed 25,000,000 is past and Russia has become fairly tranquil and is experiencing a rehabilitation which within a year doubtless will result in the export of valuable commodities on a substantial scale.

The German republic which many gloomy commentators thought would soon succumb to a royalist revolt designed to reseat the Hohenzollerns on the Prussian throne still stands, although plenty of troubles cluster around it. The threat of a bolshevik revolution in Italy is over and that kingdom has a stable government. The public opinion of the world has demonstrated itself strong enough to avert an armed conflict between Italy and Greece. The bitter warfare between Greece and Turkey which involved the massacre at Smyrna is at an end.

The struggle for an independent Irish government which has lasted for centuries has resulted in the achievement of self-government and the setting up of the Irish Free State. At the time of the Versailles treaty the situation in Poland was viewed by politicians and economists all over the world as about as bad as anything possibly could be. People were literally starving to death in the streets and the government was demoralized. Grave doubt was expressed as to whether Austria could continue as a nation. Today Austria is pointed to as a shining example of what a nation can do toward rehabilitation. With financial aid by a League of Nations consortium, Austrian currency is improving and the people are showing great advancement.

An improvement which especially affects the American people is that the "conditions" there are better than they have been in a decade and diplomatic relations have been resumed. Unemployment is a problem in Great Britain at this season but the Scandinavian peoples report increasing employment and the French have had no unemployment since the armistice. Belgium is often described as the busiest country in Europe while Czechoslovakia is a hive of profitable industry. The last year has been the best Switzerland has enjoyed since the war.

The currency situation is showing many signs of improving throughout Europe. The Russians have issued a new gold currency to take the place of the fantastically depreciated ruble and there is pending in Germany a plan for a new and stable currency which gives promise of working well. Excellent crops were raised throughout Europe in 1923.

Governor Crissinger looked back a year and recalled the doleful forecasts which had been made twelve months ago and compared them to the present situation. He recalled that nearly everyone foresaw a conflict in the Near East which would certainly plunge the world in war. A German revolution was predicted and a German royalist uprising was forecast. Neither has materialized. The Anglo-French entente was at a straining point but it still subsists. It was predicted that bad crops, typhus, starvation and universal turbulence would be Europe's lot throughout 1923, yet while Europe has not exactly been a Sunday school, there has been little bloodshed and no starvation.

The only great disaster in the world was one which fell unheeded—the Japanese earthquake. The recovery from that promises to be rapid.

Governor Crissinger did not make his list of happy occurrences and of troubles that didn't happen merely for amusement. He attached to the situation an edifying moral. He pointed out that perhaps the last decade which has been so filled with unfavorable events has been a blessing in disguise. What has occurred, he believes, has taught the world a valuable lesson which is that no one can profit from his neighbor's misfortune. Many people had thought that where two great trading nations were competing side by side one sooner or later would have to drive out the other. Germany and England were such competitors. Each accused the other of having started the war out of trade rivalry. One of these nations was beaten. If the old rule was true, England ought to be thriving in foreign trade. The contrary has happened. England has discovered that while the German competition has been removed, the German market also has disappeared. She has discovered that a defeated Germany is unable to buy her products as she did in the pre-war days.

The great lesson which Governor Crissinger sees is that the world must have discovered from the last decade that there is no profit to be obtained from a competitor's downfall and that the best insurance of prosperity is to have your competitor also prosperous.

America, Friday afternoon the old elm toppled over and will no longer be a place of pilgrimage for the American people. It was July 3, 1776, about 9 o'clock in the morning, that Washington received the sword as a symbol of his office and surrounded by his generals accepted the great trust. The elm will be preserved as it best can be, in some museum or historical hall for future generations to recall again and again, what took place on the memorable morning.

LET ME LIVE AMONG MY FRIENDS
 Let me live among my friends, let me hear the laughter of them,
 Let them know past doubt or chance or misgiving that I love them.
 This one, that one for his smile, that one, this one for his chuckle.
 Let me live among my friends and to every care I'll buckle.

Oh, I'll ask no odds from fame and I'll ask no gift from glory,
 Let me live among my friends and make mine a simple story;
 Let me have this one for fishing, and the other for walking,
 And my true friend when I'm troubled, and my wise friend when I'm talking.

I've a friend for every hour and a friend for every trouble,
 I've a friend who loves the clover and a friend who'll tread the stubble,
 I've a friend to set me laughing and a friend to share my sorrow,
 And I know a friend will answer should I cry for help tomorrow.

Let me live among my friends, let me keep them all about me,
 Let them learn how much I trust them, let them never come to doubt me,
 And I'll seek no joy from fame and no pride from high endeavor,
 Let me live among my friends and I'll happy be forevermore.

Who's Who Today

DR. JOSEPH R. HARKER

The oldest college president of the Methodist Episcopal denomination, Dr. Joseph R. Harker, at the head of the Illinois Woman's college at Jacksonville, Ill., has just completed 30 years of service in that capacity. At the same time he rounded out fifty years of continuous teaching since he took charge of his school at Quin, Ill., in 1873, and also celebrated his seventieth birthday anniversary.

President Harker made his way from a mining college in England. He went to work at the age of 13 in the mines. In 1859 an older brother emigrated to America and saved money. This he decided the parents to come to the United States. Young Harker received no education in schools or colleges but his knowledge he acquired from his own reading. Books during his spare time. The county superintendent tendered him a position as teacher at twenty.

He became in demand as instructor at teachers' institutes and was finally tendered a position as teacher at Quin, Ill., by application to the preparatory department of Illinois college at Jacksonville. Harker then took up his first college course, being awarded the degree of bachelor of arts in 1883; of master of arts, in 1890, and of doctor of philosophy, in 1923. In the latter year, he was chosen president of Woman's college, at Jacksonville.

Personal Health Service

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

BETTER BIRTH CONTROL.

Within reasonable limitations, every individual can determine his own birth and weight. It is very simple. There is no law against it. When a horse grows fat he is overfed. He is precisely what is the matter; too much feed, too little exercise. When a man or woman emulates the horse he requires horse sense to know what is the matter. Very few of us have it.

Overweight or superfluous flesh is a disease which, as a general rule, is acquired. Nobody is born fat. Most of us are inherited slender, though we do derive or learn from our parents or other teachers or examiners the habits or ways of living that bring about obesity. As with certain debatable exceptions, we can decide for ourselves, first, how little we shall eat; second, how much exercise we shall take every day. These, dear children, it pains me deeply to say, are the determining factors which are usually under our own control.

Like most of the insidious degenerations of disease conditions which shorten life and produce accidents, obesity creeps upon its victim; it is hard to draw the line between normal or healthful accumulation of fat and the obesity which is dangerous. The best guide we have is the experience of the great insurance companies, which indicates definitely that a moderate excess of weight in persons under 30 years of age is favorable to longevity and health and vigor, as we all know it is to good looks and adonism or the capacity to enjoy life. On the other hand, insurance experience as certainly shows that even a moderate excess of weight in persons over the age of 30 tends to shorten life. Everybody knows it. It reduces efficiency and impairs happiness.

A moderate excess of weight means anything up to 10 per cent above the standard weight for a given age and height. It would be inadvisable, therefore, for one under 30 years of age and not more than 10 per cent overweight, to attempt to reduce. It is scarcely safe for any one under 10 years of age to attempt reduction under any circumstances, save by advice and directions of his or her own physician, because unwise reduction might likely so interfere with development with normal growth and development in young persons. For all others, in my judgment, reduction of excess weight is not only advisable, but necessary. It is a natural health, it tends to better the general health, increase personal efficiency, prolong life and restore hedonism. And it is a natural remedy for the pathological obesity associated with other disease conditions, as well as ordinary uncomplicated overweight.

Excess of weight is associated with anemia (weak blood), or with arteriosclerosis or with high blood pressure or with heart muscle degeneration.

OLD MILL ROAD SANK UNDER WHEELS INTO OLD PEAT FIRE

Green Bay—Residents in the vicinity of a post box near here have been puzzled for several weeks at the warmth of the hard surface of "The Old Mill Road." In places the roadbed was actually hot. It is claimed.

A driver of a car travelling on the road suddenly found the ground break through and his machine sunk to the axles in a smoky, ashy substance, revealing an underground fire which is consuming the peat and still spreading in spite of recent rains.

The "Old Mill Road" for long stretches is hot to the touch and authorities have barred it to traffic.

Several rains have fallen since it marsh in the vicinity was set on fire, but the fires continue to spread and undermine the road, it is said.

MANY BENEFIT BY KIWANIS WELFARE

100 Children Helped in Year—
Juvenile Section Established at Hospital.

In connection with the Kiwanis club's annual theatrical production, to be presented at the Myers theater three nights next week as a benefit for its child welfare program, the welfare committee has compiled data on what has been accomplished for underprivileged children since the last minstrel show in November, 1922. During that year, the report shows, more than 100 children have been examined, 50 have been given hospital care, and a six-room children's section is being equipped at Mercy hospital. The hope now is to have a full time nurse in charge of this section. Cases have been handled that were referred to the club committee by the city, county and school nurses, by the sisters of Mercy hospital, by doctors, teachers, the municipal judge and various charity organizations.

Great Community Project
The enterprise is referred to by the committee as "a great community responsibility" that is shared by all. "Kiwanis welfare," the report states, "not only appeals to the public to buy tickets for the 1923 show, but asks for the assistance of the public in securing out the children who need help and bringing them in for examination and treatment."

The establishment of a children's section at the hospital, completely furnished and equipped as it is, is one of the most important parts of the work today. The Kiwanis club's permanent welfare committee was organized in January, 1922, and first showed extended care for clinical purposes were made May 18, 1922. At that time a children's clinic was organized and put at the disposal of the Kiwanis club and the community.

All Doctors Co-operating
The Kiwanis club of Janesville started this work several months before the International movement and claims credit for early work along this line," the committee's statement continues.

"Since the minstrel show last year, the Kiwanis children's clinic has been active. Over 100 children have been examined, about 50 of whom have received hospital care, varying from a few days to many weeks. Nearly every physician on the staff of Mercy hospital has been called upon to assist with those cases, at different times, and the physicians have in turn turned the children over to assist in the hospitalization of certain patients.

"The work has included many examinations, the removal of tonsils and adenoids and certain minor operations, ruptures, club foot, diabetes, large skin blemishes, tuberculosis of the spine, hip joint disease, infantile paralysis cases, delayed mental development, cases of partial blindness, under-nourishment. In many cases where children have needed glasses, they have been fitted and furnished them.

Much Dental Work
"Much dental work has been done which included the removal of loose and rotten teeth and straightening. All this work has been done economically but without sparing expenses where there was need. The cases have all been investigated as to their home conditions and much personal work has been done by Father Olson and Rev. R. G. Elfrson.

Just August, the county nurse called upon the Kiwanis children's clinic for assistance in carrying on the baby contest which is essentially baby welfare work. The contest has been running and over 100 babies were examined during the three days.

Children's Ward Established
"In August, 1923, it was decided that there was a need for a children's section in Mercy hospital, so that the children could have a special ward of their own. The Kiwanis club was appealed to, and as a result, we are fitting out completely children's wards. This section, includes six rooms completely furnished, a girls' ward, a boys' ward, a play room, a single room for the more severely ill patients, a locker room with bath and lavatory and central service room in the center of the group. Attached to this above is a large sun porch, screened and curtained. The furnishings are complete from especially designed beds to dishes and linen. The decorations are for the children, but are placed in the hospital. It will make it necessary to have a nurse in charge who is especially adapted and trained in caring for children. The nurse in charge of the children's ward will give the nursing training school a place where special training in the care of children can be given. It will stimulate interest among the doctors in the subject of infant and child welfare and be a great aid to every man on the staff.

Want Full Time Nurse
"For the Kiwanis club will centralize the children's clinic and their hope is that sufficient funds can be obtained through proceeds of the show and personal gifts to make it possible to have a full time nurse in charge of the children's pavilion and the personal welfare work.

"It is hoped that no child needing the help of the welfare committee will be overlooked. It can be obtained through any of the members of the club, through the public nurses or public charities, sisters, any of the doctors in the city or through the hospital authorities.

"The doctors themselves have always been generous in their care of anybody who needed their help, whether able to pay or not, but the doctors cannot be expected to pay hospital bills, or drug bills, furnish recreation or special apparatus necessary to take care of the patients. This is where the Kiwanis welfare steps in and gives its aid, giving the physicians the best chance to do what is necessary for the child.

Builds Up Future Generation
"This is a big work, this building up of the future generation. It is a great blessing to the child who receives it, it is an aid and a source of hope to his parents, it is a great satisfaction to all of those who are privileged to give of the services in any way. At the present time there is very little need of a free dispensary or free public hospital. There is not enough poverty, but there are many children in this community whose parents are putting off much needed dental or medical care with the hope that they may die a time when they will feel better able financially to take care of them. These children are underprivileged, they are not receiving care at the time when they should have it, at the time when the more privileged child would have it.

"A deformity in a baby is much more easily taken care of than in an older child. Faulty vision should be corrected early. Crooked and deformed teeth should be attended to before the jaw and face are deformed. Bad nose and throat conditions in children should be remedied before they get the high palatal arch and drooping mouth, which spoils the looks of so many children.

"If a child is stupid or slow in school, or manifests some nervous disorders, he should be examined and tested out before he has become hopelessly lost in the race with more privileged children."

U. S. HOPEFUL OF REPARATION MEET

Chance of Settling Vexatious
Problem Seen at Washington.

By DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright 1923, by Janesville Daily Gazette.

Washington — The United States government maintains an attitude of distinct hopefulness that the reparation problem in Europe is going to be settled this time.

And this feeling prevails notwithstanding the apparently discouraging statements from Premier Poincare who insists the commission about to be appointed have no power to reduce Germany's debt to a manageable indebtedness.

To understand the meaning of the French position that prevails here, however, it is necessary to realize the position of Poincare in French politics. To admit at this time that he had agreed to the appointment of a commission to reduce Germany's payments would be to commit political suicide. His cabinet would be overthrown instantly.

But the facts of the situation as pointed out and emphasized by government officials here are obvious in their significance. Would a commission of experts determine the capacity of Germany to pay and then make no recommendations as to how the demand of the United States could be met? Up to the present time France has been unwilling to permit an estimate to be made by an international commission as to what Germany could pay. This much is now obtained by the new parties. Once it is determined, world opinion would be expected to take care of which attitude assumed by the French which in the face of absolute debt as to Germany capacity insisted on the impossible.

Cannot Modify Obligations

It is true the French need not accept the advice of the commission of experts and Premier Poincare is right in declaring that the German obligation cannot be modified, except by the consent of France and the unanimous agreement of the allied and associated powers. But that is not the important fact of the moment as viewed here. There will be time enough to discuss the merits of the recommendations of the commission of experts when that committee has completed its work. One step at a time is the slogan of the optimists in the government and it is regarded, of course, that no government is bound to accept the advice of the new commission. Secretary Hughes in his note to Great Britain in fact in his New Haven speech, specifically urged that the commission of experts have only advisory powers.

Capacity to Pay
When the commission determines Germany's capacity to pay, it will at the same time suggest a plan as to how Germany can begin to pay. That means a basis for an international loan. It is in the face of its recommendations, France still takes the position that the experts are wrong and that Germany can pay more than has been fixed, and that France will not consent to any reduction. The deadlock which has been going on for more than a year will continue, but with this important difference—the world will know where to place the responsibility for what happens thereafter in central Europe.

The French accepted the British-American plan for a commission of advisory experts largely because world opinion would not approve of their rejection.

Hope of Future
The hope of the future is based on the idea that as the area of controversy is narrowed and facts are found there will be less ground for French refusal to join with her former allies and associates in the economic reconstruction of Europe. That's why speeches and comments that on the surface appear to show that France hasn't changed her position on loans are not taken at their face value.

If I Could Repair
Watches—

WATCHES are always getting out of order. They need cleaning, or a spring is broken, or something happens to keep them from going. I'll bet that a third of the watches that were bought in this city a year ago aren't running now.

If I could repair them, I'd locate the owners of watches that didn't run by advertising my trade. I'd advertise in the Janesville Gazette Want Ads. I know I could find customers in that way, for there are many shops that depend for their trade entirely upon the services of Janesville Gazette Want Ads.
